

The Pill

Contributed by Allen Lawrence, M.D.
Saturday, 20 December 2008
Last Updated Saturday, 20 December 2008

Even With More Women on Birth Control, Many Don't Hear About the Variety of Side Effects

A new pilot program in London will make the birth control pill available next month, through pharmacists, without a prescription. It's a big shift from December 1955, when scientists made the first presentation that progesterone can stop women from ovulating, and many states had laws banning the use of contraception.

To read the full article The Pill: What You Might Not Know , click here.